RONAN, MT -- Flathead Reservation residents now have online access to find and download water right forms, find water information, and view upcoming meeting schedules and materials for the Flathead Reservation Water Management Board at www.frwmb.gov

“Our goal is to help residents of the Flathead Indian Reservation navigate through their water rights and water use issues. The site has features that track the progress of a water right application as it proceeds through our office. We expect this new web site will be a practical resource and hope it helps to engage interested parties,” — Ethan Mace, FRWMB Water Engineer.

FRWMB and the Office of the Engineer, are part of a governing body created by the CSKT-Montana Water Compact which took effect on September 17th, 2021 and now administer all water rights located within the exterior boundaries of the Flathead Reservation. The Board is comprised of two Tribal-appointed members, two State-appointed members, another member appointed by the first four Board members, and a non-voting federal member. Updates to Board appointments and staff will be posted to the new website, as well as relevant Board news and employment opportunities within the Office of the Engineer.
